

Table of Contents

Introduction . . . . .	4
By Patricia Burak
Part I: Preparing for and Responding to Mental Health Challenges Affecting International Students . . . . .	7
Chapter 1: Common Factors of Mental Health Challenges Among International Students . . . . .	8
By Xuhua Qin
Chapter 2: Common Factors of Challenges for East Asian International Students and How Professionals Can Help . . . . .	14
By Justin A. Chen and Tat Shing Yeung
Chapter 3: Connecting International Students to Counseling . . . . .	20
By Xuhua Qin
Appendix 1: From the Counseling Center Perspective: Ways to Serve International Students . . . . .	24
By Monica Thiagarajan
Chapter 4: The Role of Insurance When Dealing with Mental Health Issues Affecting International Students . . . . .	25
By Jennifer Frankel
Chapter 5: Sexual (Mis)conduct and How Professionals Can Help International Students . . . . .	33
By Cory Owen
Chapter 6: When a Mental Health Crisis Hits . . . . .	43
By Patricia Burak
Chapter 7: Suicide: When an International Student Loses Hope . . . . .	47
By Peter Maramaldi
Part II: Promoting Mental Health Among International Students . . . . .	54
Chapter 8: Undergraduate Peer Mentoring Programs for Improved Social Support and Mental Health . . . . .	55
By Peitao Zhu
Chapter 9: Challenges for International Undergraduates and How Professionals Can Help . . . . .	64
By Cory Owen
Chapter 10: Intercultural Communication Challenges and How Professionals Can Help . . . . .	71
By Justin A. Chen and Tat Shing Yeung
Conclusion . . . . .	76
About the Contributors . . . . .	82